Mayor John Chitwood Reports On Past Year, Looks To The Future

My appreciation to the Pine Cone for an opportunity to present a year end report. With the year 1960 now at hand, a brief resume of matters of interest concerning village civic affairs during 1959 is timely. The most pressing problem for the Council was the continuous effort to formulate policy dealing with the continuing growth of the village as evidenced in accelerated building and increase in visitors resulting in, among other problems, traffic and parking congestion. While no definite action was effected, due to the many diverse opinions of our citizens, it is believed that the problem, having been thoroughly discussed, will now be more amenable to solution.

The finances of the city are on a sound basis with revenue being received in amount slightly in excess of those anticipated.

One of the projects proposed on paper is the centering of governmental activities in a civic center, which would include the city hall, police and fire departments, a possible juvenile annex to the library, and other administrative offices. The center would be located on presently owned city property at Fourth and Junipero Streets. In addition, the street department corporation yard would be changed to adjoining property in the same block. The accomplishment of such a project is subject to public approval and if the financing can be placed on a feasible and practical basis. Such a center would meet the city's needs for years to come.

City Hall and Finance Department

The city clerk was honored by having been selected by the League of California Cities to membership on the City Clerks Institute Committee with the function of drawing up a city clerk's procedure manual.

The office of the city clerk was reorganized to meet present operating conditions. Inasmuch as practically all tax collecting operations have been transferred to the State and County, the title of the Deputy City Clerk and Tax and License Collector was changed

WANTED—USED CHRISTMAS TREES

Students of the Carmel High School will be around commencing at 9:00 o'clock Saturday morning, January 9, to pick up your discarded Christmas trees.

The project is sponsored by the Carmel Permanent Scholarship Fund, and a small donation in an envelope attached to your discarded Christmas tree will be greatly appreciated.

Trees will be collected in the Carmel area. Please leave them where they will be visible from the street, or call MA 4-1821 and we will pick them up.

The Carmel Permanent Scholarship Fund is unique in that scholarship grants are issued only from earnings of the capital amount of the fund. Trustees of the Carmel Permanent Scholarship Fund are all administrators or teachers of the Carmel High School.

to the realistic title of Assistant City Clerk. The title of the account clerk and stenographer was changed to administrative clerk and the person handling the city accounts, payroll, etc., was changed to that of fiscal clerk.

The inquiries, correspondence, accounting, records and files, the minutes and legislation, all accumulate and proceed with increasing volume and pace.

Carmel P-TA Asks Ban Against Sexy Paperbacks; Farr Urges Moral Suasion

Carmel Elementary Parent-Teachers Association is starting the New Year with a campaign for legislation to curtail newsstand paperback books and magazines with bawdy cover "art" and salacious reading matter.

The executive committee of the P-TA has sent letters to Congressman Charles Teague, State Senator Fred S. Farr and Assemblyman Alan G. Pattee which state: "We feel that some legislation to 'clean-up' or curtail these undesirable publications should be passed."

Briefs...

At the top of this page, on the right side, the date box starts off this week with the information that this is the 45th Year (of publication) No. 53 (53rd issue this year.)

Next issue will be 46th Year, No. 1. The 46th will stand until 1961; but each week they have to reset the line down stairs to change the No. item. It doesn't bother them a bit to set No. 53, but it upsets me when it happens every few years. We publish once a week and there are 52 weeks in the year, so why...? They showed me a calendar down stairs. January 1, 1959 fell on a Thursday; December 31, 1959 falls on a Thursday; we publish on Thursday; there haven't been any more weeks than usual this year; just more Thursdays. With leap year coming every four years it happens that way from time to time, they explained downstairs.

But leap year accounts for only one extra day in four years, and a week is a week. I can understand the Thursday business this year but why wouldn't sometimes our year end with No. 51? But it never happens that way.

You who pay for your Pine Cone by yearly subscription have an extra issue this year and you won't be shorted next year to balance it out, and if there are any astronomy whizzes among you who can explain how this happens I'd appreciate hearing from you. Meanwhile, I nurse the suspicion that the Pine Cone is operating on the Old Believers' calendar.

Anchors A Weigh, publication of the Oakland Knights of Columbus, has a big story about the interview we carried with Fred Williams, foreign correspondent, author of The Martyrs of Nagasaki, and future resident of Carmel.

What tickles me is the opening sentence of the article:

"The Carmel Pine Cone, 'Bible' of the writers and artists over the world from Pekin to Paris by way of New York, pays high tribute to Fred Williams..."

See, you didn't realize what you are getting for $4.50 per year; ($7.80 if you buy it on the newsstands in No. 52 years; $7.95 in No. 53 years.

Nobody was surprised Tuesday when Foster and Kleiser billboard representatives offered the county planning commission suggestions for revising the county billboard ordinance so that they would be able to retain 85 percent of the signs that the ordinance requires them to remove by July 1960. Their (Continued on Page Thirteen)

Senator Farr, who has just received his letter, told the Pine Cone that he has not yet had time to answer it, but he does not believe there is much hope of getting censorship legislation.

"It would be better if the P-TA used moral suasion on the newsstand keepers than to try for legislation," he stated. "When you attempt to write laws controlling pornography you run into the question of who is to decide what is pornography. What may be pornography to a child or a half-wit may be great and beautiful literature to the intellectual."

Senator Farr, pointing out that the Carmel P-TA has powerful influence in the community when it chooses to use it, said: "They have been effective in the past in all they have attempted. They were effective with the theatre people in getting the kind of movies they wanted for the children's matinees. They could be equally effective in keeping pornography off the newsstand if they went to the local dealers."

In 1942 the P-TA was successful in getting a reluctant Carmel City Council to pass an obscenity ordinance which is still in the code but which Senator Farr thinks would be difficult to enforce. At the time, a newsstand proprietor told the Pine Cone: "If the P-TA would give us a list of what magazines they don't want put on the stands, we'll keep them off. The distributors leave them with us. We don't have to put them out, but we're not in a position to judge what's going to hurt a child and what isn't."

Several of the drug store proprietors and one liquor store manager still try to discriminate among the paperbacks that go on their stands but with admittedly catch as catch can results.

"We don't know all the literature of the past and the value of what is being poured out now, day by day. Some of the worst cover art has gone on the covers of century old literary novels. And you can't judge by the author's name on the cover of what's inside," he said. Knowing the reputation of Vladimir Nabokov's Lolita, when the same author's Pnin was delivered, he left it in the return carton in the back of the shop until a customer asked for it and explained that it was entirely different in character from Lolita, concerned as it was with a Russian professor's attempt to adjust himself to an American university faculty life, with the sex incidents playing a minor part in the story and treated in an unobjectionable manner according to today's standards.

"These books pour through by the thousands, we can't know them all."

Wharf Theatre Fire Destroys Structure Early This Morning

Fire almost completely destroyed the Wharf Theatre early this morning. Damage to the premises on Monterey's Old Fisherman's Wharf is estimated at $50,000. Cause of the blaze, which was reported at 1:31 o'clock this morning, is as yet undetermined.

According to the Monterey Fire Department report, the alarm was turned in from the fire alarm box near the Customs House by an unknown person. The department found the whole building involved when they arrived. Smoke and carbon monoxide gas were pouring from a broken area of the roof in the middle of the structure.

The Monterey Fire Department controlled the flames within minutes and contained the fire to the Wharf Theatre premises. However, they worked until 5:00 o'clock this morning overhauling the debris to make sure there would be no rekindling of the blaze and the premises are being guarded today.

Monterey Fire Chief C. H. Hebrard, fire prevention officer Chief Robert Wigham, and Leonard Adams, building inspector, are probing the causes of the fire. According to the Monterey fire department, causes of the blaze could have been electrical, a burning cigarette or the ignition of flammable liquid. The building had been used for rehearsal purposes until 10:30 o'clock, they report.

The Wharf Theatre premises have been a concern of the Monterey fire department for some time and the fire prevention officer demanded improvements at the site. These improvements helped firemen contain the blaze quickly (Continued on Page Thirteen)

Council To Breast Hurricane On Four Item Tour Tuesday?

If the long-awaited and sure to happen at least once a year sou'wester (hurricane) is howling through the Carmel Forest Tuesday afternoon, the city council can console themselves that they have only four sites to visit on the monthly tree tour.

At the third house southwest of Seventh on Carmelo Street they will look at a yew tree and decide whether or not to give Mrs. Margaret Leachman permission to trim it. In September, they denied her request to remove the tree.

At Sixth Avenue east of Monte Verde they will decide what to do about the pine that Harrison Godwin wants to remove because it will obstruct the proposed drive (Continued on Page Thirteen)

William Bishop Shares His Travels, Himself In His Christmas Card

We bring you greetings from far away places and peoples. Joyce and I thought you might enjoy hearing a smattering of my recent six months' voyage abroad, and so with our holiday greeting this year we include the following resume of some of my experiences, which, if they were set down in their entirety could easily fill a volume!

On the happy day of February 7, 1959, we motored from Carmel to the city by the Golden Gate, from whence next day at noon I sailed on the 29,000 ton S. S. Orsova of the Orient Line—an all British passenger steamer—for Los Angeles. The day was beautiful and sunny and the seagulls followed us way into the high seas. Late afternoon found us taking a last fond and nostalgic (for me, at least!) look at the beautiful Monterey Peninsula in the distance as our ship followed the coastline to its first port of call.

After checking with the ship's purser all the important items of travel and witnessing a game of Gymkane, I looked through the passenger list to learn a little about my traveling companions. There were approximately 1600 aboard, and apart from a goodly number of exchange students and a few others, most were of British origin.

Life aboard ship is delightful for those lovers of good food and lots of leisure time in which to play hard or do absolutely nothing—just as one chooses! The breakfast hour brings the steward to your cabin with a cup of tea and biscuits, plus the schedule of events for the day. A very full schedule plus one's own added activities (Continued on Page Seven)

PADRE HOOP SQUADS AT MONTEREY TUESDAY

Carmel High School's basketball teams return to action after a two-week layoff during the Christmas holidays when they travel to Monterey for a triple-header with the highly-regarded Treador squads. Coast County Athletic League rules forbid playing games or practicing during the vacation period so Tuesday's action might find the players a bit rusty and puffing a little more than usual due to the prolonged layoff.

Tuesday's games at the Monterey High pavilion are strictly early evening affairs with the junior-varsity fray slated for a 3:45 tip-off, the lightweights get started at 5:00 o'clock, and the varsities square off at 6:45.

Both the Padre and Treador varsity units are favored to win their leagues and Tuesday's Peninsula natural will give a good indication how the B-league stacks up with the A-division of the CCAL. Coach Ed Larsh is high on his varsity squad this season and was confident enough to schedule two Bay Area basketball powers, Berkeley and McClymonds, for his two practice games. The Treadores gave Berkeley a good battle before losing the decision but the jumping-jacks from McClymonds taught the Monterey lads a good lesson in the finer points of the sport. Following the defeats at the hands of Berkeley and McClymonds, the Treadores played outstanding ball in the Santa Cruz Tournament and breezed to the championship without being pressed at any time. The Padres also started slow this season, being eliminated after two games in the Gustine Tournament and dropping a decision to the classy Gilroy five. However, in the league games against San Lorenzo and Gonzales, the Padres indicated they were reaching top form by winning both contests with plenty to spare.

SPORTS IN REVIEW

From a sporting standpoint, '59 started like any other year with the gay sports who played too hard on New Year's Eve making well-intentioned resolutions and the West Coast took another fearful beating from the Big Ten as Iowa University clobbered the University of California Golden Bears and started Coach Pete Elliot thinking about moving to the Big Ten where the men aren't matched against the boys. On the Peninsula, the big January sporting event is always the Bing Crosby Pro-Am Golf Tournament which was won by the slender pro from Pocono, Pa., Art Wall Jr. The weatherman cooperated better than usual for this year's tournament and the charity-ticketed gate reached record proportions. The golfers were also cut in for a better take as the event was raised to a $50,000 affair. Carmel High School's varsity basketball squad won the league title and earned the right to participate in the newly-formed Stanford University Tournament. The Padres were overmatched at Stanford and bowed out after two games. The 13th Annual Carmel Invitational Basketball Tournament was won by the Gilroy Mustangs as the tourneys most valuable player, Dick Smith, engineered Coach Bob Hagen's crew to the title. On the national scene, the hoop sport in the professional ranks was again dominated by Bob Couzy and his Boston Celtic aggregation, but the collegiate experts were given a jolt when Pete Newell's University of California quintet upset West Virginia to win the national title. The Golden Bears are now working on a 25-game win streak and they have put defense back into the game of basketball. Coach Pete Peletta's Monterey Peninsula College hoopsters tied for the Coast JC crown but lost the playoff to the San Jose City College Jaguars. Pete has done an inspiring job since taking over as basketball mentor at the Lobo campus and just recently led his cagers to the Coast JC tournament title at Fort Ord. Big heartbreak for West Coast and local baseball filberts

was the folding act of the San Francisco Giants who played dead to the Los Angeles Dodgers and finally finished a disappointing third in the National League race. However, the Giants didn't sit still during the trading sessions and have apparently come up with the men to plug the leaks as they traded away Jackie Brandt for two established pitchers and got Don Blasingame from St. Louis for Wagner and Spencer. Big baseball comeback was made by the Los Angeles Dodgers who shook off the '58 seventh-place finish to out-fight the Braves and Giants for the '59 title. On the strength of Don Sherry's strong right arm, the Dodgers whipped the light-hitting Chicago White Sox for the World Series loot. Baseball in Carmel centered around the highly-successful Little League and the off-shoot farm teams. Jack Miller's Carmel Realty nine won the 1959 Little League title, making it two years out of three that the realtors have topped the championship. Syracuse University replaced Louisiana State as the top collegiate football team but LSU's Billy Cannon was still the top football player. Professional football became so popular that the colleges are worried and the pros are going to increase the size of the NFL and add a new league. Big flop of the professional football league was the Los Angeles Ram entry which had a dream backfield, a dream line, and played in a dreamy sort of way to finish last in the NFL. Red Hickey did a superior coaching job with the San Francisco '49ers but a flock of injuries made them easy prey for the Colts in the two crucial games. Baltimore repeated as pro champs and aptly demonstrated that defense is the important item in modern day football. Monterey Peninsula harbored two championship football teams as the MPC Lobos tied for the junior college title and Carmel High ran its undefeated string to 26 to cop the CCAL B-division crown. Seven Padre grid-ders were picked for the All-League squad—Ron Faia, Harrison Hilbert, Toby Edson, Briart Le-Neve, Tim Mitchell, Fred Bucher, and Doug McClurg. Boxing action was highlighted by the quick knockout of champion Floyd Patterson who ran into the quicker-than-the-eye-can-follow right of Ingemar Johansson who turned the championship into the greatest legal squabble of all time. Two ex-champions, Tony Canzoneri and

Max Baer, succumbed to heart attacks and the California Boxing Commission did Bobo Olson the biggest favor of the year when it denied him the chance to meet Archie Moore for the light-heavyweight title. A look into the 1960 crystal ball shows the University of Washington upsetting Wisconsin in the Rose Bowl; the Yankees coming back to win the AL pennant; the Braves copping the NL flag; and Patterson regaining his heavyweight title in a decision over Ingemar—but don't bet on it.

The Honorable Fred A. Seaton
Secretary of the Interior
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Fred:

I want to go on record strongly in support of the Monterey County Planning Commission's proposal for a National Parkway along California State Highway No. 1, extending from Point Lobos to San Simeon.

As a preliminary step in this direction, we are currently consulting with the Director of the National Park Service of the Department of the Interior as to what can be accomplished administratively and what must be done legislatively.

At the appropriate time, I will thoroughly appreciate your usual sympathetic and full consideration of this proposal.

Sincerely yours,

Music Society Announces Bolet's Concert Program

The Carmel Music Society will present Jorge Bolet, pianist, in a concert at 8:30 o'clock on Tuesday evening in Sunset School Auditorium.

Mr. Bolet has received international acclaim since his debut with the New York Philharmonic. In 1957, after five years absence he repeated his first New York success in a Carnegie Hall concert. During the same year, Jorge Bolet appeared with the Havana Philharmonic, the Royal Philharmonic Symphony in London, toured the United States, and played to sold-out houses in England, Sweden, Spain and Denmark.

On Tuesday evening his program will include four Chopin Ballades; Sonata in D major, K.

576, Mozart; Consolation in D flat major, La Campanella (after Paganini), Un Sospiro and Paraphrase on the Quartet from Verdi's Rigoletto, by Liszt.

Letters..

December 29, 1959

Editor, The Pine Cone:

A printers' devil with a sense of humor apparently pried the type of last week's review of Angel Street, in a couple of references to the performance of Mason Wright.

The first typo seems apt coinage: the description of the character played by Mr. Wright as "a brisque bloodhound of a detective." The portmanteau word "brisque" suggests a frisky combination of "brusque"—the word intended—and "brisk," which Mr. Wright's portrayal of Sgt. Rough certainly is, too. I like "brisque," and hope to find occasion to use it deliberately.

Mr. Wright is an actor of considerable talent and versatility; however, I did not intend to suggest that his performance in Angel Street smacks of female impersonation. The review's remark that his portrayal of Sgt. Rough involves "mannerisms suggesting both Mrs. Watson and Caligari" is perplexing, perhaps even frightening, in its implications. Apart from what psychologists would call a confusion of sexual roles, the reference as it appeared is inappropriate: the character of Mrs. Watson, as I recall from the later adventures of Sherlock Holmes, was pretty wishy-washy, unlike either Sgt. Rough or Mr. Wright. (One of the Baker Street Irregulars published a monograph contending that Watson was a woman, for that matter.) The idea that there may have been a Mrs. Caligari is something I don't even care to consider.

These irrelevancies are best left to scholars of the pre-war German film and of Holmesiana. In fact, the intended allusion to the jolly-goodfellowship of Dr. Watson and the satanically hypnotic Dr. Caligari seems pretty far-fetched to begin with, and I regret dragging them into what was intended as a laudatory review.

Yours for an unambiguously happy New Year.

—Virginia Shaw.

Macahilig To Open Edel's Restaurant At Pereira Location

On Saturday Plaridel Macahilig will open a restaurant on San Carlos Street just below Ocean Avenue. It will be called Edel's, the name by which Mr. Macahilig is known to his friends.

A native of the Philippine Islands, Mr. Macahilig came to the United States in 1928. He shuttled between San Francisco and Carmel for three months then settled in Carmel and has remained here since 1929.

He began working for Whitney's Restaurant in 1951 and in 1955 became the owner of the restaurant concession at Whitney's.

His San Carlos Street restaurant was formerly occupied by Pereira's Restaurant. Mr. Macahilig will bring to his new restaurant the charcoal broiler which he used at Whitney's, presented to him by Willard Whitney. The Whitney Restaurant will be closed for a year, although the bar will remain in operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Macahilig are the parents of eight children, Rene, Elis, Tessie and Dits Requiro and Bert, Alice, Leo and Suzanne Macahilig. The five older children were outstanding students, scholastically and athletically, during the years they attended Carmel schools. They continued their education as honor students at Monterey Peninsula College, also the University of California, and the boys served in the Army with distinction.

Milk Distributors Ask Price Hike; Hearing In Salinas

A hearing has been called by the Bureau of Milk Control to consider amendments to minimum prices for milk for January 7, at 10:00 o'clock in the morning in Veterans Building, 14 West Laurel Drive, Salinas.

A hearing for the San Francisco Marketing Area will be held the day before in San Francisco.

Milk distributors serving the Monterey-Santa Cruz Marketing Area, and the San Francisco Areas state their costs of labor and materials have increased since the last increase in minimum price. They also argue that consumer purchasing power, based upon taxable retail sales, increased 3.5 percent in 1958 from the previous year.

High Horizons, showing wildlife and plants of the Rocky Mountains will be portrayed in William Ferguson's Audubon Screen Tour color motion picture and lecture at Sunset Auditorium Thursday evening, January 7, at 8:00 o'clock. Mr. Ferguson, cartoonist-lecturer of Omaha, follows the melting snows from high Rocky Mountain peaks to Colorado's alpine pastures.

As one descends from the peaks, distinct zones of life exist almost in layers or strata. Although the descent can be measured in thousands of feet, the differences in animal and plant life are as great as if the journey stretched a thousand miles from the Arctic to Colorado. American pipits and brown-capped rosy finches are found in the alpine regions; cony and weasel on the boulder-strewn slopes; Rocky Mountain jay and Clark's nutcracker in the tall spruces below timberline.

Double Police, Highway Patrol Protection Tonight

The Carmel Police Department, Monterey County Sheriff's Office and the California Highway Patrol have made special plans for the protection of the public this evening.

Police Chief Clyde Klaumann reports that Carmel will have double coverage all New Year's Eve. Officers on duty will remain longer than the end of their shift. Officers coming on duty will arrive before the time ordinarily scheduled for their shift to provide the double protection.

"I expect no trouble within the city limits," Chief Klaumann stated this morning, "our trouble all comes from outside," he emphasized.

The Sheriff's Office will have all units operating this evening. All officers will be on duty to protect citizens in the areas around Carmel, if necessary.

The California Highway Patrol plans traffic checks at various points in northern Monterey County, including the area around Carmel. Cars will be stopped to ensure safe driving conditions. All Highway Patrol officers will be working this evening in the Peninsula area.

MUSIC AND DANCE SUBJECT NEXT EXTENSION LECTURES

The University of California Extension will present four music and dance lecture-demonstrations during January and February at the Carmel Art Gallery.

On January 15, Drama Through Music, will be the subject of Joseph W. Kerman, author, critic and teacher. He will illustrate his talk with The Turn of the Screw by Benjamin Britten.

The second program on January 22 will be given by Arnold Elston, composer and teacher. He will discuss The Achievement of Arnold Schoenberg illustrated by piano selections and records.

Third program, Jazz Is A Living Art, will be presented by Ralph J. Gleason, jazz critic, columnist and advisor to jazz festivals on January 29. He will play recorded examples of the subjects he discusses. The last program will be on February 19 when Dance As Expression will be the subject of Ruth Beckford, modern and primitive dancer. She will have with her dancers, a pianist, and a Martha Graham film.

Wilderness Of The West

A Monthly Column
by O. Edward Graves

10. Oregon's Three Sisters— a National Park?

The feature article in the Annual Number of the Sierra Club Bulletin (Oct. 1959) is one by David Simons, entitled These Are the Shining Mountains. It concerns the Three Sisters region of the Oregon Cascades, one of my favorite wilderness regions in which I have camped and tramped a number of times. It lies between Eugene and Bend and is reached by the all-year McKenzie River Highway.

The Three Sisters region, a unique volcanic exhibit with one of America's most extensive obsidian fields and with more spectacular scenery to the square mile than most other mountain regions of the country, is at present an officially designated Wilderness Area of the U. S. Forest Service. A few years ago a bitter controversy raged between the lumbermen's groups and the conservationists over the question of withdrawing 53,000 acres (about one-fifth) of this Wilderness Area and putting it into the Forest Service cutting circle. After a series of hearings, in one of which at Eugene I participated, the Forest Service ruled in favor of the lumbermen.

In this article, written by a young conservationist whose home is on the edge of this Wilderness Area, there is much information about this controversy and many excellent photographs of the region. However, the history-making proposal advanced by the article, now being evaluated by the Sierra Club, is that the entire region be made into a national park, with the tentative name "Cascade Volcanic National Park." This involves a transfer of the custody of the land from the U. S. Department of Agriculture (of which the Forest Service is a part) to the Department of the Interior (under which the National Park Service operates.)

Since every Government department is very tenacious of its rights and privileges, this would precipitate a major struggle in Washington. On one side would be the commercial users of the national forests and their powerful Washington lobbies, who might hope to get even more of the present Wilderness Area withdrawn eventually; on the other side would be those people who feel that the highest use of the region is to preserve it intact, not only for the enjoyment of travelers in it and for its esthetic value as an inducement to tourist travel, but also for its conservation of water, which is one of the most important uses that any government-owned land can have.

If the Forest Service had been more compliant with the wishes of the conservationists in the controversy just ended, no doubt this proposal would never have been made. The Forest Service seems to be coming more and more under the influence of the big commercial lobbies in Washington and away from its own wilderness area policies of a decade or two ago. Thoughtful people everywhere are becoming more and more worried over this trend.

Anna L. Clark

Mrs. Anna L. Clark died on December 24 in a local hospital. She was 92 years old. For the past 15 months she had lived in Carmel with her daughter, Miss Marion H. Clark, at Seventeenth Avenue and Scenic Drive. Before moving to Carmel she made her home in Oakland.

Mrs. Clark was born in Norwood, Massachusetts, on November 30, 1869. She came to live in California in 1872. Her husband, the late Frederick H. Clark, principal of Lowell High School in San Francisco, died in 1933.

Mrs. Clark first came to Carmel for a summer vacation in 1910. Every year since 1937, when her daughter, Marion, built a house on Carmel Point, Mrs. Clark returned here for a summer visit.

Besides her daughter in Carmel, Mrs. Clark is survived by a son, Robert H. Clark of Detroit, Michigan; a daughter, Mrs. Eleanor C. Brundin of Santa Cruz; and three grandchildren, Robert E. Brundin of San Jose, Clark L. Brundin of Berkeley and Mrs. Cecily B. Patterson of Van Nuys.

Private funeral services were held on December 24 in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea Crematorium.

Small and large printing orders are quickly filled at The Pine Cone Press. Dial Carmel MA 4-3881.

GROUCHO MARX SAYS "The secret word is..."

US: Saving!

GROUCHO: Reading my mind, eh? Do your parents know you read that sort of thing?

US: We've always known the secret, Mr. Marx. We're the Bank of America.

GROUCHO: Got all the answers, huh? Well, give me fifty reasons why I should save at Bank of America.

US: Well, actually, there are fifty-nine—the fifty-nine services available to every Bank of America depositor.

GROUCHO: Impress me some more.

US: That means with your savings deposited at Bank of America you can count on help with all your financial transactions—from setting up a trust fund to cashing a check, from managing your securities to...

GROUCHO: May I suggest a sixtieth service?

US: What's that, Mr. Marx?

TOYON

*The south-land chaparral
Glow with your berries,
On hillsides where the sturdy wild-growth clings,
Persistent, beyond mere mankind's knowing.
Even in arid years bestowing
A feast for tiny, feathered things.
When chill wind strikes the upland meadows
The glory of your fruitage burgeoning
Transcends vicissitudes of winter's planning
By sustenance of wilderness' free wings.*

—GRACE R. BALLARD

ONE RISTA OF CHILI

Crumbly in stale cupcaked hills, grafted from texture anemic, wen-like this lone adobe house sunfused uneven, wind-time made old, its paintpeeled door a long grim nose and its windowpanes just vacant stares, a sand-fast skull on a parchment plain until from some frayed viga sliver the sudden wax-red cord of chili-hearts drips blood for a living home.

—E. W. NORTHNAGEL

ALONG THE COAST

*Hammer smiths are winds
Silvering leaves with subtle taps
Like rain monotone.*

*Interim of winds
Is lift of wing on way to nest,
Curve of branched pine cone.*

*Swashbucklers are winds
Flinging prodigal whitecaps Toward coast trees time blown.*

—ETHELFORD CARROLL

THE LONESOME ROAD

*You ask, what is the Lonesome Road?
It is a way that must be trod
By one with an intolerable load,
Bereft of brotherhood and God.
Perhaps 'tis overwhelming grief
That breaks his spirit and his back,
Or pain that turns the heart to leaf,
Calling him to the single track.
It may be the burden of a song,
Demanding lyrical release,
That causes him to shun the throng
Until expression bring him peace.
No matter why he spurns his kind,
He must walk lonely, far and far,
Till something shapes in body or mind
To quench his dark, obsessional star.*

LIBRARIAN'S NOTEBOOK

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg

We wish you a happy New Year,
we wish you a happy New Year,
we wish you a happy New Year and a glorious Fourth of July!!!

Chester Bowles has held many public offices and during his career he has taken time to write seven books. The latest of these is entitled The Coming Political Breakthrough. In it he not only states his convictions about conditions in the world today but he discusses the coming election and its special importance for all of us. This is a good book and it may become an important book.

In view of the obvious fact that sharks are appearing more often in the waters of our bays, it seemed that a book about them might be interesting to readers in this area. So we have Sharks Are Caught at Night which was written by Francois Poli and illustrated by Ralph Thompson. The author went to the Island of the Caribbean to study shark-fighting and fishing. This book about his adventures there is a fascinating thing.

Some expert tells us frequently that our real enemy is not Russia but Red China, so to learn more about these Red Chinese, we have Impatient Giant, Red China Today, by Gerald Clark. The author was a correspondent for several newspapers and makes his headquarters in London. Some parts of this book appeared first as articles in the New York Times, and the illustrations are photographs.

Partly autobiographical is Brown Girl, Brownstones, by Paule Marshall, a first generation American. Both of her parents were born in Barbados, and immigrated to the United States where Paule was born. She grew up in New York, and visited her parents' island during her childhood and again later on. This is her first book and in it she writes about her own people and she writes well.

Peter the First is a huge novel by Alexey Tolstoy, who was no relation to the great writer of the same name. This is the Russia of the old days. We are told that the book took years to write and certainly it will take you days to read. For this reason it is a two week book rather than a seven day thing. Have fun.

Last year was a wonderful year for this library, and next year should be even better. We hope it will be so for you, too.

Arlene Newcombe

Arlene Woods Newcombe, 22, former Carmel resident, was killed in an automobile accident near King City early Christmas morning.

Miss Woods took part in Studio Theatre productions and was employed by the Elston and Cranston architectural firm during her residence here. She also attended Monterey Peninsula College before enrolling at Long Beach Junior College in September.

She is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Woods of Hayward; two sisters and a brother.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday in Oakland.

William Bishop's Unforgettable Christmas Card

brings the realization that use really can be made of the seven meals provided each day. (Plus afternoon tea with at least a dozen varieties of pastries.) In addition to the daily scheduled events, swimming, dancing, movies, etc., the ship's orchestra performed several times a day. Concerts and talent shows were presented, to which the latter lured me to boldly proffer a rendition of "Cockles and Muscles"—perhaps to the possible dismay of the audience—but I had fun!

Since Los Angeles was our first port of call, I remained aboard, being much more intrigued by my newfound shipboard life, and next morning found us on the high seas amid ever mounting waves. It was beautiful. The morning was spent in getting acquainted with many of my fellow passengers and the various departments of the ship. What a wonderful group of people! The life stories of many of them would make interesting reading. The feeling of warmth and genuine friendliness of this little group of people brought together for a period of three weeks was most apparent.

The Captain's gala cocktail party was magnificent. The elaborate dress worn by members of the fair sex certainly indicated they couldn't possibly be travelling as lightly as I was! During the party rolling seas grew heavier, and dancers swayed from port to starboard, very often ending up with a brand new partner, thus adding much hilarity to the occasion. This was my first experience at this sort of thing, and I really can't say I minded too much at all!

Morning found us in the midst of a storm, and how different the feeling as compared to the revelry of the evening before. Not a voice to be heard amid the crashing of waves and moaning wind. Silent figures manned their posts, and passengers remained in their cabins, only a few venturing out into the darkened corridors. And so on through this eerie world until we were greeted by the beautifully colored skies and dancing girls of Honolulu. Here I was treated to the unexpected pleasure of a rapid trip around the island by my niece who was waiting when the ship docked.

Saturday the 21 of February found us at Suva, Fiji, a tropical paradise. Here the market presented an unusual spectacle in its offering of foods of strange and unknown varieties. Lunch at the Grand Pacific Hotel was no less impressive with its unsurpassed service, costumed waitresses and exotic dishes. All of which was sadly wasted on me I fear, as a plate of good old American hamburger and mashed potatoes would have been much more to my liking! The splendor and color of the native plant life of this island was a wonder to behold. Sailing time saw a great multitude at the dock to see the ship off—the likes of which I have yet to see in any other port.

Another delightful period of shipboard life, and Auckland, New Zealand was the port of call, a city of busy shops and much pedestrian traffic. A drive took us to the points of interest—University, government buildings, parks, etc. From the hills above the city to which the drive took us, through roads lined with New Zealand Christmas trees—a sight to behold when in bloom—we looked at the great city below with its red roofs, and I was somehow reminded of Cincinnati, Ohio. Once again the unusual size and brilliance of the foliage was most impressive.

Shipboard again, an unexpectedly calm voyage through the Tasmanian Sea, and a farewell dinner and ball marked the end of the first portion of my sea trip, and arrival at Sydney, Australia, home of distant days.

Noon found me enjoying one of my favorite Australian drinks, a "shandie," which is beer with lemonade, and a large beef rissole, all for two shillings, or twenty cents. Walking through King and George Street in the afternoon I decided for myself that 42nd and Broadway is not the busiest crossroad in the world! Later to my heart's delight, through chatting with the proprietor of a milk bar over a milkshake, I learned the whereabouts of a very fond friend and classmate of 51 years ago. Our meeting the next day was one of the highlights of my trip. Since he had been informed of my demise, needless to say, our meeting was one to be remembered! He of course showed me the sights in and around Sydney, and next evening I took the express train for Brisbane the land of eternal sunshine. Here after thirty-five years absence, I was met by my son and introduced to his wife and new baby boy. I spent a month getting to know my family, being delightfully pampered and spoiled by them, and renewing my acquaintance with this wonderful land so changed by progress through the years that I hardly recognized it.

Limited space prevents a detailed account of my stay. Suffice it to say that if one likes warm weather, sunshine, and congenial people, this is really the country in which to be. The cost of living amounts to about half the sum of American living. Another thing which impressed me strongly in these days of high medical cost is the fact that in Queensland (only), a system of free hospitalization has been evolved. Any ill person may enter a hospital at any time regardless of circumstances, and receive first class treatment for as long as is needed absolutely free. Doctors donate two days a week of their time, and hospitals are supported by what is known as the "Golden Casket Lottery," which is sold by everyone all over Queensland. It works!

It was hard to leave this wonderful land, but time was of an essence, and a most sentimental parting from family and old and new friends found me finally abroad the sister ship to the "Orsova," the "Oronsay," bound for London. After several stops and a tour or two, on April 15 we arrived at Colombo on the island of Ceylon. Here we visited a Buddhist temple, an experience long to be remembered. Also on a visit to a section of the city where dwelt the wretched of humanity. It is hard for the western world to realize that such conditions of misery, deformity, and poverty can still exist in a supposedly modern and civilized world.

That evening we were entertained by the famous Kandyan dancers aboard ship. Newly embarked passengers included many Catholic nuns on their way to London after several years of continuous service abroad as well as a great number of Hindu men and women in their colorful garb.

At Aden, a British protectorate and duty free port in the Indian Ocean we were welcomed by a Scotch bagpipe parade. Here passengers availed themselves of extremely low priced top quality merchandise of all kinds. Transistor radios brought forth a continuous stream of news and Arabian and Greek music, and as we reached Suez flocks of sea-going Arabian merchants boarded the ship and set up shop. Arab state police were also in evidence in good number, and in claiming my mail found it had been censored. A tense state prevails here.

Our fourteen hour Suez crossing began next morning. Much shipping goes through the Canal. On our port side flocks of men, women, and children plus donkeys work near enough to talk to. The ground is covered with greenery, palm trees, sugar pines, and rushes growing in the waters, and a temple here and there. The word "Allah" came to our ears often. We

Suddenly I began to remember my travel agent's admonishments not to get off in Egypt, and also their amazement everywhere at my having been able to procure a visa, since practically no visas of any kind to Egypt were being issued. More and more police came on board, and out of twelve hundred or more passengers aboard, only a lady on a British passport, a gentleman from Lebanon and myself it seems had been granted visas to enter Egypt. Why I had been so easily granted one I will never know. However, the Egyptian authorities were definitely curious to know, and lost no time in showing it! Thanks to Cook's Travel Agency, without whose help heaven only knows where we three would have ended up, we managed to survive the three day waiting period, and Customs. The gentleman from Lebanon and I lost count of the number of officials who went through our passports, the questionings and searchings, all done at bayonet point. The lady passenger was taken away, appearing and disappearing at intervals. This went on for hours with the Cook's agency keeping watch of the whole proceedings, until at last we were given a new guide and taken by limousine through dark alleys and streets at 3:00 a.m. to a hotel, with instructions to appear at the agency at ten in the morning. The Lebanese gentleman and myself shared a room together, and needless to say neither of us slept much, as we had the feeling of being watched. In spite of the rather unpleasant situation, I did manage to have one or two interesting experiences during the three day waiting period. At the hotel I met two young fellows from Athens who proposed a safe way to see some of the sights, by hiring a carriage and taking a drive. So we were driven to Mosque Gamma, a Mohammedan mosque, and although outsiders are usually not allowed to enter, a handful of coins strategically offered to the keeper of the threshold gained us entrance, where this individual at least, gave thanks for a safe journey out of this uneasy land.

In the evening a friend of my acquaintance, and a native of Port Said induced us to take a walk through the native section. My heart palpitated as our Greek guide pushed through the Arab mob as though he were mighty "Pasha." And so I witnessed many sights during the night in the native market streets of Port Said where very few would care to venture at this time. Suffice it to say that I was very glad to branch off to the European section.

Next morning I decided that a haircut was in order to make a presentable appearance in Greece. To make a long story short I received a very nice haircut in a rather lavish place with all kinds of service for the enormous sum of ten cents, plus five cents as a tip, which was received with much bowing to the floor in thanks. Later through a conversation I discovered I had been given tourist treatment even at that, for the regular price to a native for a haircut is five cents!

Thus ended my stay in Egypt, the land of the Pharaohs, where, had conditions been normal I would really have liked to visit and partake of its ancient wonders. Sunday, April 26, again with the help of Cook's Agency, papers were finally cleared for boarding the Greek ship "S. S. Achilleus," destined for Piraeus, Greece.

All sorts of passengers came on board bound for Alexandria, Athens, and Brindisi. Here was a beautiful Alsatian shepherd dog, there someone carrying a huge bunch of bananas, another with a fine feathered bird in a cage, and so on. The ship, small and new, carries 1st, 2nd, 3rd and deck passage, mostly Greek, German, French, and all announcements are made in these languages. It was interesting to note that all through my trip very little English was spoken anywhere. The food was the best I tasted in all my six months of travel, most of it served in mold or torte style.

At Alexandria we picked up many families with young children, all traveling as deck passengers. Whole families traveled with their own bedding and slept on the cold, damp deck, in spite of rough weather and falling temperatures.

As we neared Greece, I made the acquaintance of a gentleman from Iraq who spoke, besides his own tongue, very fluent Greek, English, and French. As I disclosed my intention of visiting Paris he supplied me with names and addresses, and much valuable information which stood me in good stead when I reached there. He later joined me at Paris.

As we made our way to the dining room together, the sun was sinking into the Ionian Sea and the shores of Attica became visible—first sight of the land of ancient glory, the jewel of civilization in days long gone and my homeland.

Of the dozens of Greek isles glistening in the sun I found time to visit only two, the islands of Crete and Cerigo. Of these Cerigo is my favorite. Here, as I walked quiet hills overlooking a sparkling sea, amid flourishing strawberry trees and abundant rock roses, the air was filled with the fragrance of wild sage and thyme. A sense of utmost calm and peace pervades the island, and as I stood enveloped in its beauty and restfulness, it seemed for a time that I was in communion with great souls of the past. If one seeks refuge from the maelstrom of today's hectic living, here it can be found.

It was on Good Thursday, April 30, that I arrived in my native Arachova, a village of 4,000 population, situated at the foot of snow-capped Mount Parnassus, and very near the famed Oracle of Delphi. Having been away fifty-one years, I hadn't remembered the village to be so beautiful—or so cold! While I staggered under the burden of as many articles of clothing as I could possibly get on the natives went about in their shirtsleeves, and arched their eyebrows in complete surprise at my request for a little heat. They weren't cold in the least, and couldn't understand what was wrong with the "poor American!" Hardy people, these, grow strong through the years of primitive living, no modern stresses, and pure mountain air.

Good Friday by the Greek calendar dawned, and this year found me celebrating two Easters, as one had already been celebrated the month before in Australia. The early morning air was filled with the sound of tinkling bells and hoofbeats as shepherds passed in a steady stream leading the little lambs fated for the Easter barbecue. Churchbells tolled throughout the day, and the marketplace was the site of many strange scenes. In the evening the whole village was lit inside and out with candle light as church processions filled the streets. The throng was augmented by the chanting students from Athens holding lighted candles, and many luxurious busses, some direct from Germany, passed through, stopping on their way to allow passengers to purchase the weaving for which Arachova is noted.

In the days to follow, I roamed the ruins at Delphi, the theatre, and made the exhausting climb to the stadium, lying fallen in splendor at the top of the hill among the olive groves. In the company of an old friend I took a walk among familiar hills and valleys of our boyhood days.

Among the spruces on Mount Parnassus, where with family and friends I was enjoying a farewell barbecue a shepherd from the mountains, not often meeting anyone, came down to us, happy to see us, as we were to see him, because he delighted us with a succession of ¾ time heroic Greek legend songs. Each stanza was followed by an interval played on his flutelike instrument. "Oh, thou mountains of Gravenna and pines of Metsovo, slightly bend thy branches that in their shade I may repose." We were all sorry to say goodbye to our mountain shepherd, who would accept nothing more than our heartfelt good wishes and thanks, and in them rejoiced.

My day of departure came only too soon, and with mixed feeling, I left for Athens, where I had many missions to perform, through Thebes. There friends showed me the sights of the city, much like any large city and on June 1, having fully completed the missions for which I made the trip to Australia and Greece, I bid goodbye to the shores of Greece and set out for Syracuse, Sicily. I will not elaborate further on the rest of my trip, both for lack of space and the fact that most of the places visited are familiar or pretty well known about by almost everyone. These included Naples, Capri, Pompeii, Florence, Venice, Milan, Paris (10 days), Stuttgart, Heidelberg, Kublenz, Bonn, and Rotterdam, from whence began the homeward journey aboard the "Statendam." I was met at the boat in New York by dear friends, and spent a few days at Cape Cod, then to Boston, Montreal, Canada, and Quebec, with two days at Banff. A boat trip to beautiful Victoria from Vancouver, and finally at Seattle I bid farewell to my sea and ocean voyages, now a never to be forgotten memory, and boarded the Shasta Dome Express to Oakland, San Francisco, and home with the heartfelt wish that everyone might have an opportunity to partake of such a wonderful uplifting and inspiring experience as has been granted me.

And so we leave you with our very best wishes for the happiest of holiday seasons and a most prosperous New Year.

As ever,

WILLIAM GEO. BISHOP.

Marriage Announced

Miss Frances Fairfax Harrison and Colonel Alfred S. Balsam (USA ret.) were married in a private ceremony at 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon of December 24 in the Carmel Highlands home of the Right Reverend Winfred H. Ziegler, retired Episcopal Bishop of Wyoming.

The former Miss Harrison is the daughter of the late Francis Burton Harrison, Governor General of the Philippine Islands from 1913-1921, and of the late Mrs. Judson Harrison of Pebble Beach.

Colonel Balsam graduated from West Point with the class of 1915. He is a survivor of the Bataan death march and was a prisoner of the Japanese for three and half years during World War II.

Colonel and Mrs. Balsam will live in Hatton Fields.

Gertrude Bardarson's News

Carmel friends of Mrs. Otto Bardarson of Seattle, whose husband was principal of Sunset for many years and first principal of Carmel High School at the time of his death, received news of the Bardarson family on Christmas cards.

Mrs. Bardarson returned to Sweden, her native land, in June after an absence of 48 years. Her nine cousins and many friends in Sweden "rolled out the red carpet from Stockholm to Kiruna, high above the Arctic Circle," she relates on her card.

Following the Swedish visit Mrs.

Bardarson travelled through 14 European countries. This part of the trip was a present from her older son and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Baird Bardarson. After three months abroad she returned to the United States in time for the birth of her seventh grandchild, Rolf Baird, who is the second son of Mrs. Bardarson's son, Linne, and his wife, Dot. Also added to the family since last Christmas is Lisa Margaret, the fourth daughter of Baird and Peg Bardarson.

Town House Yugoslavia Pictures

At Carmel Foundation Town House on Wednesday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock, Carl Bensberg will show color slides of Yugoslavia, taken on a recent trip during which he covered the length of the country almost to Albania, and returned by the coast road along the Adriatic Sea ending in Trieste. Tea will be served after the program. All interested persons are welcome.

High School Age Parties

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Osborne gave a costume party on Tuesday evening for their goddaughter, Sydney Leonard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Leonard of Carmel. The Macomber house in Pebble Beach was the setting for the affair, attended by a large group of local high school students and guests from the Bay area.

Monday evening Julie Thomas gave a party at her parents' residence at Mark Thomas Inn. Linda Little, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawson Little, was hostess for a party for the high school and college group on Saturday evening.

Wild's Poem in Times

A recent issue of the New York Times published a poem by Arthur Wild describing the Carmel Surf. Wild is a member of Olivia Young's Poetry Workshop, a Carmel Evening School project.

Christmas Visitors

Henry Dickinson had his son, Henry, from Los Angeles, and his daughter, Edith, from Sausalito, with him for Christmas dinner this year.

Two Birthdays Honored

Mrs. Shreve M. Archer Jr. gave a birthday dinner and dancing party on Monday night for her husband and Mrs. Harry A. Leonard whose birthdays are close together.

For the Monday general meeting of the Carmel Woman's Club, Mrs. C. Tod Singleton, vice-president and program chairman, has chosen to present Dorothy Crawford, above, who will appear in a program of original character sketches, of which she is the author. They deal with what we see and are experiencing today, at home and abroad.

Her repertoire includes, Having Nice Time, where "Hazel" who is a "card" is introduced: she finds her fun at Soda Fountains where she meets the "nicest people." A little tale of Old Saint Mary's has in it one of audiences' favorite characters, Rosa of Fisherman's Wharf.

The members of the hospitality committee, with Mrs. Peter Kutschera as their chairman, will serve tea following the program.

The Goodwills Visit The Turners

Dr. and Mrs. Glen Goodwill were holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George B. Turner in the latter's new home in the Country Club. They were entertained with movies of Mrs. Turner's European travels last summer. Dr. Goodwill, former Superintendent of the Monterey Schools is now Superintendent of the Santa Monica Schools.

Other Yuletide guests of the Turners were: Mrs. Lillian Leuck and Miss Betty Ann Leuck of Sepulveda; Mrs. Woody Killam of Bakersfield; Mrs. William Walker and Claudia and Vi Ann of Panorama City; Miss Juanita Arnold, and Mr. Douglas Johnson who is attending the University of California.

Art Association Election

A new show by the membership will open at the Carmel Art Association Galleries on Wednesday. Chairmen of the hanging committee for this show are Eugene Baker and Joe Ataide.

On January 11 new Association officers and board members will be elected at a meeting of the general membership to be held at 7:30 o'clock at the galleries.

The Riders See N. Y. Plays

Fred and Marcia Rider will return next Monday from a holiday excursion which has taken them to Connecticut, New York and Washington, D. C. during the past two weeks. Fred, who is director of the Golden Bough Circle Theatre, attended the American Educational Theatre Association Convention in Washington early this week, and is also conferring with theatrical groups there and in New York on methods of play production and theatre promotion which may be applied here.

The Riders have had an opportunity to see some of the latest Broadway offerings, and spent Christmas at the home of Fred's parents in Danbury, Connecticut. They return just in time to begin rehearsals for the next Circle Theatre production, Nude With Violin, in which Fred will trade his usual director's duties for a principal role.

Plaxton's Terrifying Experience

He's glad to be back alive, City Tax and License Collector Arthur Plaxton reported Monday. He, Mrs. Plaxton and his mother, Mrs. Nettie Rose Plaxton had a wonderful Christmas at Riverside with Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Brown (Betty Plaxton) Bruce 5, Mark 4, and Julie "The Princess," two and a half.

But "like a fool I drove home Sunday night." Even the durable nerves of the one-time sports car racer quailed at the holiday traffic. He saw two bad smashups and had to pull to the side of the road several times "to let the wild ones by" as he prayerfully made his way home.

College Holiday Reunions

Carmel college students, home for the holidays, are meeting one another informally about town and at home; more formally at parties. Wherever they meet there is a reunion atmosphere and a great amount of "catching up on things."

Home from the University of California is Andy Horning, an architecture student and an Alpha Tau Delta pledge. Wendy Draper, a Cal Tri Delt pledge, was guest of honor at a party given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Draper last evening. Katie Fry, Cal freshman, had a luncheon party for some of her Carmel High School class of 1959 friends on Monday. Other Cal students home for Christmas are Robin Burnham, Les and Mat Laky, Karen Oleson, Mike Antonich, David Castagna, Carey Edson and Reiko Takata.

University of California at Davis students home for the holidays are Lucinda Lloyd, Dale Dawson and John Williams.

From the Santa Barbara campus of the University of California Carmel holidayers are Don Smith, Art Wilkerson, Hampton Stewart and Judy Zellhoefer.

Among Stanford University students in Carmel for the holidays are Janet Fehring, Phil and Tony White, who had a party last week. Doug McAulay, Gordon Douglas, Nancy McKay, Paul Prince, Frank Wallace, Luraine Deering, Jerry Butts and JoAnn Johnston.

From Willamette University in Salem, Oregon, Christmas vacationers are Lynne Campbell, Hilary Teague, Anne Hawes, Durell Decker and Sam Farr. Patty Elston is home from Mount Holyoke College in Massachusetts. She held an open house for former Carmel High classmates on Tuesday night. Wendy Burnham and Donna Work are here from Wellesley, Diana Burk from the University of Arizona. Nancy Lofton drove home to Carmel from St. John's College, Annapolis, with Mr. and Mrs. Milton Mayer. Midshipman Michael Raggett flew across the continent from the U. S. Naval Academy for Christmas. Neil Giarratana, the polar route from England to San Francisco. He has been in Stanford in Germany for six months. Last night Neil had a party for his Carmel High classmates and friends. Other Carmel midshipmen from Annapolis home for Christmas are Dick Holt and Roger Bulene.

Mills College students in Carmel for the holidays are Linda Teague and Judy von Loben Sels. Mike Blanton came from Reed College in Portland, Oregon. Sue Mitchell from the University of Nevada, Leslie Geyer from the University of Southern California. Leslie also had a Christmas reunion party for Carmel friends.

Gail Da Roza is telling about freshman year experiences at College of the Pacific; Walt Helm, University of San Francisco; Janet Kellogg, University of Colorado; John Keppelman, Sacramento City College; Lee Harms and Ade Bennett, Antioch College in Ohio.

Deen Rowe is home from six months' training with the Bally Shoe Company in Switzerland.

San Jose State College students exchanging experiences with Carmel school friends are Donna Sands, Jerry and Jon Stueffloten, Marilyn Reid and Robin Davey.

University of Oregon Christmas vacationers in Carmel are Jean Elston, Richard Tetley, Bill Doolittle, Gail McKenzie, Gail McHarry and Diane Dodd. Tom Stanford and Renee Vallon are home from California Polytechnic Institute in San Luis Obispo. Dave Vincent from Fresno State College, Xenia Kastor from Dominican College in San Rafael, Clyde Klaumann and David Farr from Humboldt State College in Arcata, Phil Durbrow from Claremont Men's College in Southern California, Bob Marshall from nearby Pomona College, Nancy Barrows from Pacific University in Oregon, Roberta Vallon the University of Redlands.

Christmas At Aspen

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Whitaker are back in Carmel after a week's skiing at Aspen, Colorado. Sharing the Christmas holiday with them were their son, Steve, and his wife, Nancy, who came from the East to join the Whitakers in Aspen.

Pete Mitchell Santa Claus

Four hundred and fifty children on the Island of Guam watched Santa Claus arrive in a helicopter, jump on a red fire engine and drive to a party where he gave them all presents.

"Never saw so many children in one place before," said Santa Claus in a letter to Mrs. M. A. Mitchell of Carmel Highlands.

Mrs. Mitchell's son, Pete, who has been stationed on Guam for nearly a year, expects to return to Carmel in August with his three years' Navy duty completed. Pete graduated from Carmel High School in 1957 and was a member of the golf team. His brother, Tim, played with this year's championship Carmel High football team.

Sullivans' First Child Born

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sullivan (Capilla Canfield) have a son, Matthew Raymond, who was born in San Francisco on December 3. He is their first child.

Matthew's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Matthew C. Jenkins of Pebble Beach and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sullivan of San Francisco. His great-grandmother is Mrs. Lathrop Brown of Saddle Rock Ranch, Big Sur.

Mrs. Ray Has Denver Holiday

Mrs. Lucille Ray, secretary to the city clerk, left on Christmas Eve for a two-weeks' visit with relatives in Denver. Meanwhile, Mrs. Eleanor Shepherd is typing up the "admoes" (administrative memoranda) at city hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGinnis have for the ninth year invited a group of friends to see the Rose Bowl game at their home. Mr. and Mrs. Mark Thomas will hold an open house party at the President's House.

New Carmel Residents

Dr. and Mrs. Graham Brown have moved into their new home on Monte Verde Street and Dr. Brown has opened an office for the practice of medicine at Lincoln Street and Seventh Avenue. Dr. Brown's two daughters, Patricia, 16, and Kathleen, eight, are at present visiting an uncle in Hawaii.

Dr. Brown was born in New York City and was educated at New York University. He received his medical degree from the Long Island College of Medicine and trained at French Hospital in New York and U. S. Naval hospitals in New York, Corpus Christi and New Orleans.

Early in World War II he became a flight surgeon and licensed pilot. He is a graduate of the Air University of the USAF School of Aviation Medicine. Later Dr. Brown was a hospital commander in Europe with the USAF.

Following the War, Dr. Brown had a private clinic in Los Angeles and did postgraduate work in chest diseases for Los Angeles County. He comes here from Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Hooky DeAmaral Home

Howard DeAmaral drove to Carmel from Chicago to spend the Christmas to New Year's holiday here visiting relatives and friends. A former Carmel High School athlete, Hooky reports he has been on three championship bowling teams in the Chicago area and breaks well under 100 at golf. He is associated in business with a book binding firm in the East.

James P. McNeill IV Born

Dr. and Mrs. James P. McNeill yesterday became the parents of a son whom they have named James Purdie McNeill IV. The baby was born in Moffatt Hospital at the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco where his father is an ear, nose and throat resident.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. McNeill of Carmel now have three grandchildren. The other two are James Purdie's sister, Ann, three years old, and James Robertson McNeill, son of Mr. and Mrs. Legare McNeill. Legare is in his second year of medical studies at the U. C. Medical Center. Both the new baby's father and his uncle, Legare, are Carmel High School graduates.

Sidney Trevvett To Marry

Lorene Balsano of San Francisco and Sidney Alexander Trevvett II, son of Mrs. Patty Trevvett of Carmel, and the late David Kreigh Trevvett, will be married at 4:00 o'clock on Saturday afternoon in All Saints' Episcopal Church. They will live in San Francisco where Sidney is associated with the Anglo-American Bank.

He is a graduate of Sunset School and Carmel High School. Following Navy service he continued his education last year at San Francisco City College. His grandparents are Mrs. Richard W. Johnson of Carmel and the late Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Sidney Trevvett of Carmel and the late Mr. Trevvett.

Richard Ogden, former Carmel High School classmate, will be Sidney's best man.

Julie Carol Christmas Baby

One girl and two boys opened packages under the tree in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Yurkovich on Christmas Day. By evening the birth of Julie Carol had increased the Yurkovich family to an even balance of two girls and two boys.

Julie was born at the Monterey Hospital at 6:00 o'clock in the evening. Her sister, Dona, is ten years old. Her brothers are Dan, seven, and John, 18 months old.

Here to share the Yurkovich Christmas excitement was Mrs. Martin Hartwig of Sloat. She plans to remain for a couple of months before returning to her home in the Feather River Canyon. Mr. and Mrs. Pete Yurkovich of Jerome, Arizona, are Julie Carol's paternal grandparents.

Her father is a faculty member and varsity basketball coach at Carmel High School.

McKinstry Off To Rose Bowl

Mr. and Mrs. Paul McKinstry will be in Pasadena tomorrow to see the Rose Bowl Parade and attend the University of Washington-Wisconsin game in the Rose Bowl tomorrow afternoon.

Wharf Theatre Fire Destroys Structure Early This Morning

The Wharf Theatre was operated under the management of Thomas Brock of Pebble Beach and Mrs. Jane Edson Parker of Carmel. Neither could be reached this morning for comment. Mr. Brock is believed to be in Mexico.

Council To Breast Hurricane On Four Item Tour Tuesday?

In the Ocean Avenue Parkway, 75 feet west of San Carlos, there is a pine Councilman and Street Commissioner James Buffington thinks should be removed. It is alleged to be hazardous since the trunk is rotting at ground level.

Street Superintendent William Askew has asked the council to look at the illegal bulkhead on the sidewalk northeast of Second on Torres. The owner of the property has constructed a retaining wall on the sidewalk right-of-way, "constituting unauthorized trespass."

The tour starts from city hall at 4:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, and the Pine Cone suggests that the Seine and Line Fishermen's Union offer to lend rubber boots and oil skin coats to the citizens who should attend these official, if peregrinating, council meetings, but never do.

Briefs . . .

(Continued from Page One) proposals would also open the county eventually to more billboards than ever. They pointed out that they were now fighting the Marin County billboard ordinance in court and hinted not too subtly that Monterey County could expect the same treatment if it wasn't prepared to compromise.

The planning commission told the billboard spokesmen to put their proposals in writing and submit them to a committee which will report back to the planning commission on January 12.

Senator Fred Farr, whose billboard legislation was blocked in Sacramento by the outdoor advertising interest lobby, commented yesterday:

"I hope the planning commission doesn't yield an inch. Let the billboard people sue. We have a very competent legal staff in this county. These billboard fellows say in Washington, 'let the states regulate the billboards', then come to us in Sacramento and say, 'let the counties regulate the billboards,' and then they try to bust the county ordinances."

RUSSIAN LANGUAGE CLASS

More pupils are desired for the Adult School Russian language class at Carmel High School. Sessions begin again on Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock and last for two hours.

There are openings in the class as some of the students have moved away from this area during the holiday season. More information about this class may be obtained by telephoning Charles Dawson, Adult School principal.

CHURCHES*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The thought that acknowledgment of one, infinite God, and obedience to His commands, is essential for the spiritualization and salvation of mankind, will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday.

The Lesson-Sermon is entitled "God." The Golden Text is from Deuteronomy (10:12, 13):

"And now, Israel, what doth the Lord thy God require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good?"

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following will be read (228:25-27): There is no power apart from God. Omnipotence has all-power, and to acknowledge any power is to dishonor God."

the city and the control of traffic and parking with the end in view of preventing the occurrence of violations. Seeking to improve even further on the present high performance standards, department personnel attended the following instructional activities: the F.B.I. Annual Retaining Session held at Anaheim, California, the advanced Police School held at Fort Ord, California, the California Check Investigator's Institute Conference held at Fresno, California, the F.B.I. Firearms Training Course at Fort Ord, California, and the Northern California Narcotics Officer Conference held at San Mateo, California.

Fire Department

The Carmel Volunteer Fire Department experienced an unusual year. The department responded to three major fires. Fortunately, only one of these fires was in the city limits—the Cypress West Hotel. The other two were forest fires, one on the Pacific Grove cut-off, the other in the Carmel Highlands. One death was recorded as a result of burns suffered in a home. To further the department's skill, two men attended a specialized fire training school operated by the State of California at Fresno. Locally, the men put in about 800 man hours in fire and first aid training.

The department is constantly striving to lower our fire insurance rates by endeavoring to apply the latest recommendations of the Pacific Board of Fire Underwriters.

The installation of additional hydrants and the continued training program all contribute in achieving the department's goal: the prevention of fires, the minimizing of fire losses, and the saving of lives.

Street Department

The Street Department had a busy year in maintaining our streets and parks in a generally excellent condition. To cope with the heavy traffic and rain damage the seal coating program was extended.

Considerable progress was made in improving storm drainage conditions, the main work being the diversion of the run-off at the park site on Camino Del Monte. It is expected that this will expedite the turning of this site into an acceptable park and recreation area.

Due to an increasing number of sidewalk pedestrian accidents in the business district, which heavily reflect in the city's liability insurance premiums, the council enacted an enabling ordinance which provides, in effect, that the Street Department, in cooperation with the property owner, may take the correction of such sidewalk deficiencies in hand.

The City Engineer is preparing plans for the installation of an adequate drainage system on Ocean Avenue from Junipero to the ocean and the re-surfacing of Ocean Avenue from Junipero to Monte Verde Streets. The completion of this work is tentatively scheduled for the end of the 1960 summer tourist season.

The much needed street cooperative project on Eighth Street was finally completed to the satisfaction of the neighborhood.

Planning Commission

The Planning Commission had a most successful year, handling many difficult building and zoning problems for the city.

A master plan for the environs of Carmel, developed by the commission, was adopted by the council in February, 1959. This was then closely followed up in the preparation of new zoning laws for the business district which, it is expected, will be presented to the council for consideration in the early months of 1960.

Many building plans were processed, indicating the large volume of building undertaken during the year.

Art Commission

The Art Commission completed its first year with the formulation of plans for an artistic cultural festival scheduled to be held during the month of October, 1960, and also plans for an artist-in-residence to be brought to Carmel at some time during the year.

The realization of these projects will require the cooperation of our citizens.

The commission has accepted certain pictures donated by artists which have considerably enhanced the interior appearance of the city hall.

Forestry Commission

The Forestry Commission completed the first year of its existence. The public was made acutely aware of the desirability of fostering the preservation of an urban forest. In furthering the reforestation program, the street department was active in the planting of many additional trees.

The Harrison Memorial Library

The library performed its unusually good services to our citizens with a very high number of circulated books to its credit. It was with sincere regret that the resignation of Mr. John E. Abernethy, chairman of the Board of Trustees, was accepted upon the completion of 12 years of service to the community. The guidance of Mr. Abernethy, along with the oth-

Carmel P-TA Asks Ban Against Sexy Paperback Books

Farr's suggestion that it use "moral suasion" on the local dealers can be anticipated in a statement from Tom Argust, a member of the P-TA executive committee. "It isn't enough to get that stuff off er trustees, contributed greatly to the highly efficient way in which the library operates. The board and the city was saddened at the death of Mr. Albert Lester, who was serving in the second term of his trusteeship.

Building Inspector

The building inspector handled a large volume of business in the processing of plans, issuing of permits, and the inspection of buildings under construction. In addition, his valued services were made available to the planning commission and the city council.

A survey of existing commercial signs was completed with the end in view of drafting an equitable sign ordinance to supersede the present interim ordinance.

Municipal Election Year

Attention is invited to the fact that the life of this council is rapidly coming to its close. As the terms of three Councilmen terminate in the spring of this year, the biennial election for the three successors will be held on the second Tuesday of April, 1960. There are many important issues and problems which will fall to the lot of the new council for consideration and solution.

The city's best wishes for a prosperous and happy 1960 is extended to everyone.

Respectfully submitted,

John S. Chitwood, Mayor

the stands in Carmel, we want legislation to get it off the stands throughout the country."

The P-TA was shocked into action at its last meeting when a parent passed around a current best-selling paperback, widely displayed on the stands, which she had found in the possession of her daughter, a sixth-grader.

The executive committee published the text of the letter it had sent to Farr, Pattee and Teague in the December issue of Carmel Elementary Schools P-TA Newsletter, a mimeographed bulletin distributed among the membership, and concluded with: "If any members of the P-TA have similar thoughts on this subject they are urged to write to their legislators."

The letter:

At a recent meeting of the Carmel Elementary P-TA Executive Board, it was brought to our attention that undesirable literature in increasing numbers is becoming accessible to our school children throughout the nation. This literature, in the form of paper backed pocket books and magazines, is readily available to children at most newsstands.

It is our belief that this type of reading material is most harmful to the proper moral development of our children. This is definitely a matter which concerns all of us—parents, teachers, and lawmakers alike.

As a group, we feel that some legislation to "clean-up" or curtail these undesirable publications should be passed. Anything that you can do to foster a plan, or further any pending legislation dealing with this growing problem will be greatly appreciated.
